AV-equipment for
Meetings & Conferences

Interpreters can now easily interpret via the Internet, just as the system offers virtual meeting features for any meeting or conference.

Conferences

Teletech offers a system dedicated to remote interpretation. Remote interpretation means that the interpreters who would normally be present at the venue itself, can now interpret to the participants over the Internet. The interpreters can be located all over the world. This means less travel time for the interpreters and that no interpretation booths at the venue. The delegates listen to the remote interpreting with smart devices or can use traditional radio/IR headphones. Please also notice that the system also allows for remote speakers and participants.

Press conferences

It is easy to supply professional simultaneous interpretation for press conferences with the system. Interpreters can be booked from all over the world and a short notice. You can have as many languages as you require and there is no need for interpreter booths in the room. The participants can use traditional receivers or their smart devices to listen in on their interpreted language. Please also notice that the system also allows for remote speakers and participants.

Board meetings & smaller meetings

The system can be used at any type of meeting. For example, at board meetings where there is the need for interpretation to participants from different countries. The system also allows for remote speakers to participate. Again, there is no need for interpreter booths.

Panel discussions

At panel discussions the system can operate with as many languages as required. Here the remote interpreters interpret to the participants in the panel, so that they can listen to the discussion and participate in their own language. All meeting participants can be active during the meeting via their laptop or smart device. Teletech can provide video coverage of the meetings, sound systems and stream presentations to the participants as well.

Seminars, workshops and teaching

At seminars, workshops etc. it is important that knowledge is shared in the right way. Therefore, it can also be advantageous for lecturers and lecturers to teach in their own language and easily have this interpreted to the participants.

Online meetings and video conferencing

The system can also facilitate pure online meetings. Here the participants use their laptop or smart device to participate. The system also allows for integration of well-known videoconferencing platforms, so it is very flexible.
